al-der-man [alderman aldermen] BrE [ˈɒldəməŋ] NAmE [ˈɒldərməŋ]noun (pl. al-der-men BrE [ˈɒldəməŋ] ; NAmE [ˈɒldərməŋ] )

1. (in England and Wales in the past) a senior member of a town, ↑borough or county council, below the rank of a ↑mayor, chosen by other members of the council
2. (feminine al-der-woman , pl. al-der-women BrE [ˈɒldəwɒm]ɪn ; NAmE [ˈɒldərwɒm]ɪn ) (in the US, Canada and Australia) an elected member of a town or city council
  - Alderman Tim Evans

Word Origin:

Old English aldormann (originally in the general sense ‘a man of high rank’), from aldor, ealdor ‘chief, patriarch’ (from ald ‘old’) + ↑man. Later the sense ‘warden of a guild’ arose; then, as the guilds became identified with the ruling municipal body, ‘local magistrate, municipal officer’.
