

exponent

1. [ɪk'spəʊnənt] n КНИЖН.
 - 1) истолкователь
a popular exponent of science - популяризатор науки
the foremost exponent of Hegel - известнейший истолкователь Гегеля
 - 2) исполнитель (музыкальных произведений)
the topnotch exponents of the new dances - популярнейшие исполнители современных танцев
2. 1) представитель (направления и т. п.); выразитель (идей и т. п.) an exponent of the age - типичный представитель своего века
- 2) выражение, знак
price is the exponent of exchangeable value - в цене выражается меновая стоимость
3. тип, образец
4. экспонент, участник выставки
5. мат.
 - 1) экспонента
 - 2) показатель степени

exponent

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

ex·po·nent [exponent exponents] BrE [ɪk'spəʊnənt] ^m NAmE [ɪk'spounənt] ^m noun

1. a person who supports an idea, theory, etc. and persuades others that it is good Syn: ↑proponent
 - She was a leading exponent of free trade during her political career
 - Huxley was an exponent of Darwin's theory of evolution
2. a person who is able to perform a particular activity with skill
 - the most famous exponent of the art of mime
3. (mathematics) a raised figure or symbol that shows how many times a quantity must be multiplied by itself, for example the figure 4 in a 4

Word Origin:

late 16th cent. (as an adjective in the sense 'expounding'): from Latin exponent- 'putting out', from the verb exponere 'expose, publish, explain', from ex- 'out' + ponere 'put'.

Example Bank:

- a leading exponent of the Japanese flute
- Huxley was an exponent of Darwin's theory of evolution
- She was a leading exponent of free trade during her political career.

exponent

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

ex·po·nent /ɪk'spəʊnənt $ -'spou-/ BrE ^m AmE ^m noun [countable]

[Date: 1500-1600; Language: Latin; Origin: present participle of exponere; ⇔ ↑expose]

1. an exponent of an idea, belief etc tries to explain it and persuade others that it is good or useful exponent of
^m a leading exponent of desktop publishing
2. an exponent of a particular skill, idea, or activity is someone who is good at it
exponent of
^m The most famous exponent of this approach to art was probably Charles Rennie Mackintosh.
3. technical a sign written above and to the right of a number or letter to show how many times that quantity is to be multiplied by itself

exponent

Freakuency Pack

12500 12249^{MCW}
15000 11033^{COCA}
RANGE: 12k EXPONENT ⁵²⁶ exponent ³⁶³
exponents ¹⁶³
COCA 500k Unlemmatized
¹⁷² 38304³⁶³ nn1