

Monday[ˈmʌndi] n

понедельник

on Monday - в понедельник

Monday feeling - нежелание работать (после воскресенья)◇ Black Monday - школ. жарг. первый день занятий после каникулto keep Saint Monday - шутл. с похмелья не работать в понедельникMonday

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

Mon·day [Monday Mondays] BrE [ˈmʌndeɪ] ^ˈ NAmE [ˈmʌndeɪ] ^ˈ BrE [ˈmʌndi]^ˈ NAmE [ˈmʌndi] ^ˈ noun countable, uncountable (abbr. Mon.)

the day of the week after Sunday and before Tuesday, the first day of the working week

- It's Monday today, isn't it?
- She started work last Monday .
- Are you busy next Monday ?
- Monday morning/afternoon/evening
- We'll discuss this at Monday's meeting.
- Do we still have Monday's paper?
- I work Monday to Friday.
- I work Mondays to Fridays.
- On Monday(s) (= Every Monday) I do yoga.
- I always do yoga on a Monday .
- He was born on a Monday.
- I went to Paris on Thursday, and came back the following Monday.
- We'll meet on Monday .
- (BrE) 'When did the accident happen?' 'It was the Monday (= the Monday of the week we are talking about) .'
- (BrE) Come back Monday week (= a week after next Monday) .
- (informal or NAmE) We'll meet Monday. From the Old English for 'day of the moon', translated from Latin lunae dies.

Monday

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

Mon·day /ˈmʌndi, -deɪ/ BrE ^ˈ AmE ^ˈ noun [uncountable and countable] (*written*abbreviation Mon.)[Language: Old English; Origin: monandæg, from a translation of Latin lunae dies 'day of the moon']

the day between Sunday and Tuesday

on Monday

ˈ It was raining on Monday.

ˈ The president announced Monday that he would cancel the debt. *American EnglishMonday morning/afternoon etc

ˈ Let's go out for a meal on Monday night.

last Monday

ˈ Kelly arrived last Monday.

this Monday

ˈ The UK office will open for business this Monday.

next Monday (=Monday of next week)

ˈ Shall we meet next Monday?

a Monday (=one of the Mondays in the year)

ˈ My birthday's on a Monday this year.