Wide is the word most commonly used to talk about something that measures a long distance from one side to the other. Broad is more often used to talk about parts of the body. (Although wide can be used with = mouth .) It is used in more formal or written language to describe the features of the countryside, etc: = a broad river  $\diamondsuit$ = a broad stretch of meadowland.

Both wide and broad can be used to describe something that includes a large variety of different people or things: • a wide/broad range of products. Broad, but not wide, can be used to mean 'general' or 'not detailed': • All of us are in broad agreement on this matter.
