

consultant[kən'sʌlt(ə)nt] n

1. КОНСУЛЬТАНТ
2. врач-консультант

consultant

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

con-sult-ant AW [consultant consultants] BrE [kən'sʌltənt] ^ˈ NAmE[kən'sʌltənt] ^ˈ noun

1. a person who knows a lot about a particular subject and is employed to give advice about it to other people
 - a firm of management consultants
 - ~ on sth the President's consultant on economic affairs
2. (BrE) a hospital doctor of the highest rank who is a specialist in a particular area of medicine
 - a consultant in obstetrics
 - a consultant surgeon

compare ↑registrarWord Origin:late 17th cent. (in the sense 'a person who consults'): probably from French, from Latin consultare, frequentative of consulere 'take counsel'.Example Bank:

- He was happy to act as a consultant to the company.
- She is now a hospital consultant.
- The review was carried out last year by independent consultants.
- They work as consultants to a software company.
- We brought in a management consultant to sort out the mess.
- a consultant in design, printing and advertising
- a consultant in psychiatry
- a consultant on business ethics
- He's a top consultant on ecological waste disposal.
- The professor also acted as a consultant to the Department of Education.
- The report was compiled by an independent consultant.
- The statistics are the result of independent research by economic consultants.

consultant

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

con-sult-ant AC /kən'sʌltənt/ BrE ^ˈ AmE ^ˈ noun [countable][Word Family: noun: ↑consultation, ↑consultancy, ↑consultant, ↑consulting; adjective: ↑consultative, ↑consulting; verb: ↑consult]

1. someone whose job is to give advice on a particular subject:
 - a management consultant
2. British English a hospital doctor of a very high rank who has a lot of knowledge about a particular area of medicine

COLLOCATIONS■ ADJECTIVES/NOUN + consultant

- a political/financial etc consultant A team of political consultants shaped his election campaign.
- a outside/independent consultant (=one who does not belong to your organization) An educational programme was planned by outside consultants.
- a management consultant (=one who advises a company how to improve its management) The company employed management consultants to help with their strategy for the future.
- a recruitment consultant (=one who helps companies find suitable staff) Recruitment consultants say that employers are reducing the number of new staff.
- a marketing consultant (=one who gives advice on how to advertise and sell a product)
- a public relations/PR consultant (=one who advises an organization on how to relate well to the public)
- a image consultant (=one who advises people how to improve their style or appearance) The new Prime Minister was advised to see an image consultant.
- a fashion consultant (=one who advises people on what to wear) It would be great to have your own fashion consultant.

■ verbs

- act as a consultant (=be a consultant on a particular project) He acted as a historical consultant on the film.
- work as a consultant We have 170 staff working as computer consultants to clients.
- employ a consultant We sometimes employ consultants to help with marketing.
- hire/engage a consultant (=start to employ one) The company hired an outside consultant to review staffing levels.
- bring in a consultant (=start to use one) Consultants were brought in to examine the building.

THESAURUS

- doctor someone who treats people who are ill, who has completed a long course of study at medical school: If you have bad chest pains, you should see a doctor.
- GP British English a doctor who is trained in general medicine and who treats the people who live in a local area: My GP told me that I must lose weight.
- physician /fə'zɪʃən, fɪ'zɪʃən/ formal especially American English a doctor: the American physician, Dr James Tyler Kent
- quack informal someone who pretends to be a doctor: My father felt that people practicing alternative medicine were just a bunch of quacks.

- the medical profession doctors and nurses considered as a group: This view is widely accepted among the medical profession.
- surgeon /'sɜːdʒən $ 'sɜːtʃ- a doctor who does operations in a hospital: One of the world's top heart surgeons performed the operation.
- specialist a doctor with special knowledge about a particular illness, part of the body, or type of treatment: The new drug is being tested by cancer specialists. | an eye specialist
- consultant British English a very senior doctor in a hospital, with a lot of knowledge about a particular area of medicine: The consultant said that he did not think it was cancer.
- paramedic someone who has been trained to treat sick or injured people, especially at the scene of an accident: Paramedics treated him for shock.
- vet (also veterinarian especially American English) a doctor who treats animals: We took the cat to the vet.
- paediatrician British English, pediatrician American English a doctor who treats children who are sick
- gynaecologist British English, gynecologist American English a doctor who treats medical conditions and illnesses that affect women's bodies
- obstetrician a doctor who deals with the birth of children
- radiographer someone whose job is to take ↑X-rays or to treat people using an X-ray machine

consultant

Freakuency Pack

12500 2632^{MCW}

15000 1311^{COCA}

RANGE: 1k CONSULT 33277

consult 3279

consultancy 259

consultant 10417

consultants 4115

consultation 3875

consultations 1064

consultative 455

consulted 2551

consults 416

consulting 6846

COCA 500k Unlemmatized

7015 3876¹⁰⁴¹⁷ nn1