Synonyms:

hate

dislike • can't stand • despise • can't bear • loathe • detest

These words all mean to have a strong feeling of dislike for sb/sth.

hate • to have a strong feeling of dislike for sb/sth. Although hate is generally a very strong verb, it is also commonly used in spoken or informal English to talk about people or things that you dislike in a less important way, for example a particular type of food: • He hates violence in any form. \bigcirc • I've always hated cabbage.

dislike • (rather formal) to not like sb/sth. Dislike is a rather formal word; it is less formal, and more usual, to say that you don't like sb/sth, especially in spoken English: • I don't like it when you phone me so late at night.

can't stand • (rather informal) used to emphasize that you really do not like sb/sth: ■ I can't stand his brother. ♦ She couldn't stand being kept waiting.

despise • to dislike and have no respect for sb/sth: = He despised himself for being so cowardly.

can't bear • used to say that you dislike sth so much that you cannot accept or deal with it: • I can't bear having cats in the house.

can't stand or can't bear?

In many cases you can use either word, but can't bear is slightly stronger and slightly more formal than can't stand. loathe • to hate sb/sth very much: • They loathe each other.

Loathe is generally an even stronger verb than hate, but it can also be used more informally to talk about less important things, meaning 'really don't like': • Whether you • love or loathe • their music, you can't deny their talent.

detest • (rather formal) to hate sb/sth very much: • They absolutely detest each other.

I hate/dislike/can't stand/can't bear/loathe/detest doing sth.

Synonyms:

get up • stand up • rise • get to your feet • be on your feet

These words all mean to be in an upright position with your weight on your feet, or to put yourself in this position.

stand • to be in an upright position with your weight on your feet: ■ She was too weak to stand. ♦ Stand still ■ when I'm talking to you!

Stand is usually used with an adverbor prepositional phrase to show where or how sb stands, but sometimes another phrase or clause is used to show what sb does while they are standing: • We stood talking for a few minutes. \diamondsuit • He stood and looked out to sea.

get up • to get into a standing position from a sitting, kneeling or lying position: • Please don't get up!

stand up • to be in a standing position; to stand after sitting: ■ Stand up straight! ◆■ Everyone would stand up when the teacher entered the classroom.

stand, get up or stand up?

Stand usually means 'to be in a standing position' but can also mean 'to get into a standing position'. Stand up can be used with either of these meanings, but its use is more restricted: it is used especially when sb tells sb or a group of people to stand. Get up is the most frequent way of saying 'get into a standing position', and this can be from a sitting, kneeling or lying position; if you stand up, this is nearly always after sitting, especially on a chair. If you want to tell sb politely that they do not need to move from their chair, use get up: Please don't stand up!

rise • (formal) to get into a standing position from a sitting, kneeling or lying position: • Would you all rise, please, to welcome our visiting speaker.

get to your feet • to stand up after sitting, kneeling or lying: • I helped her to get to her feet.

be on your feet • to be standing up: • I've been on my feet all day.
