divert Apresyan (En-Ru)

[dai'v3:t] v

1. 1) отклонять отводить; направлять в другую сторону

to divert the course of a river - изменить русло реки traffic was diverted to the side street - движение было отведено на боковую улицу flights were diverted because of poor visibility - из-за плохой видимости маршруты самолётов были изменены

2) направлять в другую сторону, в другое русло

to divert the conversation - переменить тему разговора; перевести разговор на другое /на другую тему/

3) отводить, выделять

to divert a sum to charity - выделить сумму для нужд благотворительности

2. сбивать (с пути); уводить в сторону to divert smb. from a purpose - заставить кого-л. отказаться от своей цели nothing will divert him from this trip - ничто не заставит его отказаться от этой поездки

3. отвлекать (внимание и т. п. )

to divert smb.'s thoughts - отвлечь чьи-л. мысли, отвлечь кого-л.

4. развлекать, увеселять, забавлять to divert smb. with an amusing story - позабавить кого-л. смешным рассказом to divert oneself by reading parodies - развлекаться чтением пародий

divert

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

divert [divert diverts diverted diverting] BrE [daɪ'vɜlt" NAmE [daɪ'v₃□jtt®

verb ~ sb/sth (from sth) (to sth)

- 1. to make sb/sth change direction
  - · Northbound traffic will have to be diverted onto minor roads.
  - The course of the stream has now been diverted.
- 2. ~ sth to use money, materials, etc. for a different purpose from their original purpose
- 3. ~ sth to take sb's thoughts or attention away from sth

Syn: †distract

- The war diverted people's attention away from the economic situation.
- 4. ~ sb (formal) to entertain people
  - · Children are easily diverted

Verb forms: _werb forms

verb forms present simple
I / you / we /they	divert
	BrE /daz 'va:t/
	NAmE /dai'vs:rt/
he / she /it	diverts
	BrE /daz 'va:ts/
	NAmE /da1'va:rts/
past simple, past participle	diverted BrE /daz 'va:tzd/
	NAmE /dai 'va:rtid/
-ing form	diverting
	BrE /daz 'va:tɪŋ/
	NAmE /dai 'vs:rtiŋ/

Word Origin:

late Middle English: via French from Latin divertere, from di- 'aside' + vertere 'to turn'.

divert

AmE di vert /daɪ'v₃ tdə- $ -₃ rt BrE * verb [transitive] Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

[Date: 1400-1500; Language: Old French; Origin: divertir, from Latin divertere, from vertere 'to turn']

1. to change the use of something such as time or money divert something into/to/(away) from etc something

- The company should divert more resources into research.
- Officials diverted revenue from arms sales to the rebels.
- 2. to change the direction in which something travels divert a river/footpath/road etc

- Canals divert water from the Truckee Riverinto the lake.
- The high street is closed and traffic is being diverted.
- 3. if you divert your telephone calls, you arrange for them to go directly to another number, for example because you are not able to answer them yourself for some time:
  - Remember to divert your phone when you are out of the office.
- 4. to deliberately take someone's attention from something by making them think about or notice other things divert (sb's) attention (away from somebody/something)

- The crime crackdown is an attempt to divertattention from social problems.
- He'd been trying to divert suspicion away from himself.
- 5. formal to amuse or entertain someone divert Freakuency Pack <sub>12500</sub>5675<sup>MCW</sup>

150004358COCA RANGE: 4k DIVERT 4163 divert 1543 diverted 1662 diverting 750 diverts <sup>208</sup> COCA 500k Unlemmatized

1140182261261 vvi <sub>255</sub>44031<sup>282</sup> vv0