

tolerant[ˈtɒl(ə)rənt] a

- терпимый, относящийся терпимо tolerant attitude - терпимое отношение to be tolerant of /to, towards/ smth. - терпеть что-л., относиться терпимо к чему-л.
to be tolerant towards all religious beliefs - быть терпимым к различным вероисповеданиям
- способный выдержать, выдерживающий (что-л.)
- мед.* толерантный
- в грам. знач. суц.* терпимый человек

tolerant

Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary 8th Ed.

tol·er·ant BrE [ˈtɒlərənt] <sup>ˈ</sup> NAmE [ˈtɑlələrənt] <sup>ˈ</sup> adjective

- ~ (of/towards sb/sth) able to accept what other people say or do even if you do not agree with it
  - He has a very tolerant attitude towards other religions.
- ~ (of sth) (of plants, animals or machines) able to survive or operate in difficult conditions
  - The plants are tolerant of frost.

Opp: †intolerantDerived Word †tolerantlyWord Origin:[tolerant tolerantly] late 18th cent.: from French tolérant, present participle of tolérer, from Latin tolerare. Compare with earlier †intolerant.Example Bank:

- He's relatively tolerant of my faults.
- Mares are surprisingly tolerant of the roughness and rudeness of their own offspring.
- Mary was surprisingly tolerant of his annoying habits.
- They are more tolerant towards gypsies now.
- They learn to be tolerant of other people.
- an area known to be religiously tolerant
- Although they never get angry, they are not always kind or tolerant.
- My friends are more tolerant, more willing to accept me for what I am.
- She was becoming less quick to condemn and more tolerant of others.
- The experience had made me more tolerant towards other people.
- There is little chance of a tolerant democratic system emerging.

tolerant

Longman DOCE 5th Ed. (En-En)

tol·er·ant /ˈtɒlərənt $ ˈtɑlə-/ BrE <sup>ˈ</sup> AmE <sup>ˈ</sup> adjective

- allowing people to do, say, or believe what they want without criticizing or punishing them OPP intolerant ⇒ tolerate
tolerant of/towards
  - Luckily, my parents were tolerant of my choice of music.
  - a tolerant society
- plants that are tolerant of particular weather or soil conditions can exist in those conditions tolerant of
  - trees that are tolerant of salt sea winds

tolerant

Freakuency Pack

12500 5727<sup>MCW</sup>15000 4470<sup>COCA</sup>RANGE: 5k TOLERANT <sup>3957</sup>

tolerant 1766

tolerantly 39

intolerant 668

intolerantly 0

intolerance 1449

intolerances 35

COCA 500k Unlemmatized

1455 14617<sup>1766</sup> jj